

NEW BRUNSWICK ABORIGINAL PEOPLES COUNCIL

The Monthly Mailout

November and December 2019

Communication

This year the Sunshine Committee asked NBAPC staff if they'd be interested in filling shoeboxes for Operation Christmas Child. Luckily, we have super awesome staff and it was a hit! The committee was able to fill and donate 11 boxes because of their generous donations. The boxes were filled with pieces of clothing, school supplies, toys, hygiene items and crafting supplies. A big thank you to everyone who contributed!

Communication

The New Brunswick Aboriginal Peoples Council was invited to attend the Future Ready Wabanaki Launch on November 6. The event gave us a glimpse into the positive impacts the Future Ready Wabanaki program has had on Indigenous students attending the University of New Brunswick or St. Thomas University. Guests got to listen to student testimonials and learn about what they've accomplished and the new skills they've acquired during their internships. As part of the Future Ready Wabanaki program, the New Brunswick Aboriginal Peoples Council had the opportunity to hire UNB student, Nadia Emran as a communications intern this past summer. Not only does the program help Indigenous students, but it's been beneficial for employers as well. Adding motivated and bright students to our team has brought fresh perspectives, ideas and ways of thinking into the workspace. This was reflected at the event when employers had a chance to give their experiences hiring interns through the Future Ready Wabanaki program.

A big thank you to Katelyn Copage from Future Ready Wabanaki for inviting us!

Communication

The New Brunswick Aboriginal Peoples Council was happy to host associate professor in the Department of Social Justice and Community Studies at Saint Mary's University and author of Distorted Descent: White Claims to Indigenous Identity, Darryl Leroux. Leroux has been researching the phenomenon of 'race-shifting' for nearly two decades. He gave us an in-depth look at the issue of white, French descendants shifting into self-identified 'Indigenous' identity after finding a perceived Indigenous ancestor in their family line. It's important to recognize that there are Indigenous organizations being created in our province, and throughout Canada that base themselves on ancestry alone. This means these organizations are leaving out the necessity of self-identification and community acceptance. This is an issue that we hope Canadian citizens recognize and acknowledge as harmful to Indigenous People. The Q&A was a great opportunity to share stories, opinions and get a conversation going. Again, we want to thank Mr. Leroux for sharing his knowledge with us.

The New Brunswick Aboriginal Peoples Council would like to congratulate the following award recipients.

Le New Brunswick Aboriginal Peoples Council aimerait féliciter les récipiendaires suivants.

Looking Out For Each Other Project

THE LOOKING OUT FOR EACH OTHER PROJECT (LOFEO) November 2019 Monthly Updates

Media Workshop with CBC's Duncan McCue

LOFEO held a workshop with CBC's Duncan McCue at the University of King's College (UKing's) in Halifax, Nova Scotia, on November 28 and 29. Participants included Indigenous and non-Indigenous media professionals, journalism academics and journalism students. The workshop included a full day of cultural competency training and a full day of media case study work using a draft set of reporting guidelines for media professionals, which was developed by LOFEO researchers. Terra Tailleur (Professor, UKing's) and Erin Moore (Instructor, NSCC) worked with the LOFEO Leadership Team to draft the guidelines and host the event.

Some of the key takeaways from this workshop were:

- The media plays a huge role in reconciliation. News media shapes people's perceptions!
- Cultural competency training is needed (We need more of these types of workshops)
- Cultural context is important for stories about Indigenous people.
- Respect people, their stories, their identities, their perspectives, their history, their culture, their customs, etc.
- It's important to use the right words! (Reporters need to know the acceptable and unacceptable terms and language to use when referring to Indigenous people and communities)
- Taking responsibility and having genuine relationships is important, as well as learning to take criticism and do better.

Duncan McCue says, "good things will happen, if you: respect people's customs and traditions; show a genuine interest in learning; recognize there is no "one-size-fits-all" approach to Aboriginal peoples; and nurture relationships."

Duncan McCue's website for Indigenous Reporting is http://riic.internationalreporting.org/the-guide/the-last-word/last-bit-of-advice/

Sisters Standing Together: Presented by Wolastoqiyik Sisters in Spirit and the Red Shawl Campaign

LOFEO Project Engagement Officer, Anthea Plummer, represents the project on the Sister's Standing Together planning committee. During the month of October, she assisted in the planning of their Artistic Expressions Event (held at St. Thomas University on October 23rd) and the Vigil/Walk (held at Fredericton's City Hall on October 4th). As well, LOFEO contributed speaker gifts for the full month of events.

The work of the project, including the MMI FIND Helpline, were presented to a broad audience of Indigenous community members and non-Indigenous attendees at the Artistic Expressions Event. Feedback from this presentation and from our information booth at the event was incredibly positive.
